Exploring WorldMap: A Hands on Demonstration of Historical Mapping on the Web

Friday, 13th March 2015

9.15-11.00

Hirschgässlein 21, Seminarraum 1

This live demonstration of WorldMap will offer an overview of core functionality and potentials of the GIS-based online mapping system that was developed at Harvard University and is now available for scholars around the globe. Built in a manner that in some ways resembles Wikipedia users are able to draw on the mapping data that other users chose to share, a data base that includes a wide array of data.

All those interested are warmly invited to participate.

If possible please bring your own laptop.
